AN OPEN LETTER OPPOSING THE ADVANCE OF GLOBAL GOVERNMENT AND TYRANNY

A concerted, stealthy effort is underway at the United Nations to advance the goal of world government at the upcoming “Summit of the Future” on 22-23 September. The gambit being employed is to have UN member nations agree to one accord and two accompanying annexes that will, among many other problematic things, authorize a “process” to develop an international “emergency platform” to be managed by the UN Secretary-General.

The relevant language in the present draft of the so-called “Pact for the Future” is vague in that it does not specify the powers delegated to the Secretary-General of the UN in the case of so-called “complex global shocks.” Rather, it calls on the Secretary-General to “present for the consideration of Member States protocols for convening and operationalizing emergency platforms . . . “

This request ignores the fact that the Secretary-General has already published his proposed protocols in a Policy Brief under the rubric of “Our Common Agenda.” Such Policy Briefs are intended to inform the Summit on the Future. Policy Brief #2, entitled “Strengthening the Response to Complex Global Shocks,” contains on page 12 the following statement:

Building on the ideas in Our Common Agenda and learning lessons from these recent crises, I propose that the General Assembly provide the Secretary-General and the United Nations system with a standing authority to convene and operationalize automatically an Emergency Platform in the event of a future complex global shock of sufficient scale, severity and reach. (Emphasis in original.)

Page 6 of this same Policy Brief contains a chart entitled “Possible Future Complex Global Shocks.” Such shocks include virtually every aspect of civilized life and reach even into outer space:

A) Large-scale climatic or environmental events that cause major socioeconomic disruptions and/or environmental degradation; b) Future pandemics with cascading secondary impacts; c) High-impact events involving a biological agent (deliberate or accidental); d) Events leading to disruptions to global flows of goods, people or finance; e) Large-scale destructive and/or disruptive activity in cyberspace or disruptions to global digital connectivity; f) A major event in outer space that causes severe disruptions to one or several critical systems on Earth; g) Unforeseen risks (“black swan” events). (Page 5)

In other words, the UN Secretary-General has already asked for an Emergency Platform that, once approved, would operationalize automatically – bypassing the need for approval by member states -- in the case of what he deems a “complex global shock.”

As things stand now, there is no impediment to the realization of such an unprecedented global power grab or any certainty about how, if at all, nations will be able to opt out.

Of immediate concern is the fact that the UN is using the so-called “silence procedure” to try to get this process and the rest of the Pact for the Future approved basically without public attention, let alone serious debate.

To that end, nations have been given until 1:00 p.m. ET on Tuesday, September 3rd, to “break silence.” If none does so with regard to this document and its annex, known as “the Global Digital Compact,” both will be submitted to be rubber-stamped by the Summit of the Future.

Like the Pact for the Future, the Global Digital Compact poses a serious threat to the sovereignty of member nations and to the freedoms of their people. The Compact, for example, would give rise to a digital identification infrastructure that can be used to institute a global surveillance apparatus akin to and modeled upon the Communist Chinese “Social Credit System.”

While these instruments are ostensibly non-binding resolutions, in fact, they will likely be treated as binding international commitments by the UN and most countries, making all the more worrisome the absence of any formal mechanisms for reviewing, let alone debating and rejecting the final results of these processes and accords.

The second annex, the Declaration on Future Generations, prioritizes the concept of “climate justice,” (paragraph 29), “urgently addressing the causes and adverse impacts of climate change, and scaling up collective action to promote environmental protection” (paragraph 16). One can foresee so-called climate change giving rise to the declaration of a “complex global shock.” Upon this declaration, the Emergency Platform would operationalize automatically, damaging our national sovereignty and destroying our constitutional rights.

The silence has been broken for the Declaration on Future Generations. Likely its drafters will promptly produce another draft, addressing the objections, and the document may again be put under the silence procedure.

For all these reasons, the opportunity must be afforded for further deliberation on the Pact for the Future, the Global Digital Compact, and the Declaration on Future Generations. Hence, one or more nations must break the silence before Tuesday at 1:00 p.m. ET. We call on UN members to do that and urge the world’s parliamentarians and freedom fighters to insist upon such objections forthwith.

Sincerely,
